Dear Minister Jan Tinetti

I write this letter over concerns of the New Zealand Passport (NZP) and the correct translation from te reo maori to english. I am going to speak mainly of the word uru whenua The word uru means to go into and whenua means land, so on the front of the passport would read New Zealand Passport to go into the land Aotearoa. I beleive using te reo maori in this way is not only misleading and deceptive but may also be considered tapu for many maori as it is implying that the NZP holder has been given passage to go inside ar urupa and no living being should go inside an urupa without first been made fully aware of where they are going. It is because of this descovery and many others I am made aware of where I am. I origenaly thought I was inside some type of dome structure but I beleve I am underground/uruwhenua/urupa. and the NZP played a part in bringing me here. I am a living man under god born of flesh and blood with a conscience mind and a living soul and I do not want to live inside a urupa/uruwhenua. Because the NZP is primarily used to travel by arroplane it seems more appropiate to use the word ururangi as it means to go into the sky. Your help with this matter would help with this matter would not only help my self but many others and would be greatly appreciated.

Kind Regards

Tangaroa Whakamautai
